VOL. 41. EMPORIUM, PA., THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1906. NO. 21

NETZGER.

In our last issue we announced the death of Miss Metzger and shall confine this article to "the last sad rites." The funearl which took place on Sunday afternoon, July 1st, was very largely attended. Rev. Mr. Cleaver, pastor of M. E. Church, conducted the services assisted by Rev. Mr. Robertson, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, and both gentlemen made able and appropriate remarks We are permitted to give the PRESS readers the major portion of their sermons.

FLOWER OFFERINGS.

Among those who sent flowers were: The Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, the M. E Church Choir, the Delta Kappa Society of Randolph-Macon College, Dr. and Mrs. Noyes of Olean, Bachelor Girls' Club, Miss Bissell of Buffalo, George A. Walker, Mrs. and Miss Wiley, Mrs. Bert Burrows of Warren, George P. Jones, T. B. Lloyd and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard of Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Strayer, Mrs. Hackett, Mrs. Dalrymple, Mrs. Huntington, Mrs. Schlecht, Mrs. McGrane and Mrs. Thomas.

Although a very large proportion of Miss Metzger's friends were too far away in South and West and East to attend the funeral, there were some from Scranton, Port Allegany, Olean, and Buffalo.

Members of the Bachelor Girls' Club who were in town carried the flowers: The Misses Taggart, Misses Bryan, Wiley, Steck, Thomas, McQuay, Larrabee, Mrs Charles Logan, Mrs. Leon Felt.

The pall bearers were: George A. Walker, Jay P. Felt, Leon R. Felt, C. Jay Goodnough, Fred Heilman, and Clifford Larrabee.

PASTOR CLEAVER'S SERMON.

The following is a brief summing up of what the Rev. Mr. Cleaver said:

I have come to place a flower upon the casket of her whose life diffused fragrance everywhere she went. And the flower I bring is a pure white rose, emblem of herself, and fit companion for the tomb.

Pure white rose, no fairer flower grows,
Its form is the neatest, its beauty serene,
Its fragrance the sweetest, God's grace is seen,
In a pure white rose.
Yet fairer and more bright,
Mirror of heaven's light,
Is that life almost divine,
In which all virtues shine
A life pure white.

I have not come to offer words of comfort, for I have none with which to soothe my own grief on this sad occasion, then how could I presume to comfort others. It would be like a repetition of the old saying "physician heal thyself, and if thou canst not heal thyself, why seek to heal another?" All I can do is to tell you of my sympathy, and of all who have gathered here:

"We share our mutual woes,
Our mutual burdens bear,
And often for each other flows,
The sympathizing tear."

And it is my purpose to encourage you to cling close to the Rock of Ages, with this prayer always accompanying, "Let me hide myself in thee."

Probably the most fitting funeral service we today could render for her whose life is a most precious rose-bud in this community's book of remembrance, would be to sit together in that silence which is sweter than all speech, and muse upon the past.

For when our hearts are sad, the sound of the e is like the mournful rustling of the leaves emory; for thought is deeper than all words feeling is deeper than thought.

t seems almost impossible that two short eeks should make so great a difference. Thos le in whose memory we are now gathered to ether in tears, was seemingly in perfect health, and happy in anticipation of the pleasures of her summer vacation. But we did not then know what God's plan was.

"We could not tell, but this we knew, that all is well, Though it seems most ill, if it be God's will."

Her death seems so sudden. The brittle thread that bound her to us has broken, but we can scarcely realize that she has gone—

"Gone beyond the stars to God,
Into the splendor, shadowless and broad,
Into the everlasting joy and light,
Of her reward; In robes of white
Gone to her long home;
Entered eternity to roam
And await for us, one by one
And welcome us when we come;
Still living when all of us are gone.
And when every fire of every sun shall languish and expire.
Then living still, before the throne of God shall stand.
And see new world's revolving from his hand."

The Savior's prayer, found in the 17th chapter, and the 24th verse of St. John's Gospel, helps us to understand this: "Father, I will that they whom thou has given me, be with me where I am."

It is Christ's will that we should be with him in the eternal future. It is Christ's will that at a moments call, we should leave the highest peaks of grace, and at a single stride set foot in glory Our sister has heard that call, and has left us for that better land.

You ask me why such removals, when we so much need the noblest examples here? I am bowed down, I could best express myself in tears; but I must refrain, and view it in a clearer light. The Master is gathering the choicest of his flowers. His own dear hands are wreathing the raies into garlands for his kingdom. And when we see that it is the Lord his words recalled, soon calm our spirits, dry our tears, and take away all murmuring. "Father, I will that they whom thou hast given me be with me where I am."

Now we understand why the dearest and best are going. We see in whose hand is held the magnet which attracts them to the skies. One by one they must depart from this low land country to dwell above in the place of the King. For Jesus is drawing them to himself. Our little ones go home, because "He gathereth the lambs in his arms, and carries them in his bosom." Our young people go home, because "The beloved is come into his garden to gather lilies." And our old folks go home, because "He giveth His beloved rest."

The force that draws them heavenward lies in the words "I will." It is the centripital energy that is drawing all the family of God toward its own home. And who is he that will hinder the home coming of the chosen ones? As well arrest the marches of the stars in heaven. The saints cannot be kept out of their inheritance; they must rise from their beds of silent clay, for Jesus wills it.

Then let our saintly ones go home if that be the design of our Saviour. Since all comes of divine love and sets forth divine love, let them go to him who loves them. Let divine love fulfill its purpose in bringing many sons and daughters into glory. Comfort yourselves with the thought that you will go to them, you cannot bring them back to you.

REV. MR. ROBERTSON'S REMARKS.

We cannot bring ourselves to realize, much less to accept, the fact that our sister, so lately in the bloom of perfect womanhood, so full of vigor and sprightliness, so rich in mind and heart and character, so strong in physique, so talented, so accomplished, so successful in past achievement and full of promise for the future, has suddenly gone from our midst; and that today her spirit inhabits "the vasty hall of death."

God's ways are full of mystery. Had it been left to any of us to predict, still more had it been left to us to choose, what was to be, we should never have named such a blow as this. But God is a universal God, taking account of an infinity of things of which we know little or nothing, and so the success or failure of His ways is not to be judged in the light of our lower thoughts and ways. Though we cannot understand, we still may believe, that in some way this mysterious stroke is for the best, and that the day will come that shall declare it. Meanwhile let us know that we are not shut out from the sympathy and compassion of God.

To measure our grief it would be necessary to express our appreciation of all the beauty and goodness and truth that once animated this marble form; but were we to succeed in doing this, we should find our sorrow swallowed up in a feeling of joyful gratitude that for so long a time such a presence graced our earth, and helped to uplift and transfigure our human life. Let not our foolishness dwell rather on the fact that God appoints a day of bereavement to us, than that we by God's award tasted the joy of such a presence for so long.

It is not possible within the limits of a brief word to express our full appriciation of this beautiful life, but I do wish to mention particularly the symmetry of it; the equal all-round development of the mind and heart and spirit, of moral nature and artistic faculty. We may know by the witness of this life that it is fully and triumphantly possible for one to possess the artistic sense and temperment in a high degree, and at the same time show in equal measure a balanced judgement and an elevation and strength of moral character. Here was one whose devotion to what is good and true and pure was no less marked than was her devotion to the beautiful. She was one in whom were harmoniously combined the best qualities of the Greek and of the Puritan.

A FRIEND SAYS:

It is impossible to put into words any adequate estimate of Miss Metzger's character and works. She entered largely into people's lives and in varied ways. In every friend, and even too, in every acquaintance, she met some distinctive personal need. And it was this broad, sympathy and loving, devoted service which has called forth from grief stricken friends letters full of the sense of irreparable personal loss—heart-broken letters. Her friends depended upon her for comfort, for good cheer, for entertainment, for advice in times of doubt, for companionship, intellectual and sympathetic, for enthusiasm, and for inspiration. Her love of beauty, and, particularly, her desire to see beauty expressed in visible form helped to make almost countless homes more homelike. She had an infinite capacity for giving and her life has been a gift of service to pure living and high thinking.

She had that sense of humor which invariably accompanies quick intelligence. This with her charming conversational powers made her the merry centre of many social groups, and popular in every society into which her duties called her.

Miss Metzger was an artist. At times when others would have been in doubt and gloom, she found her way to cheerfulness through her piano and her song. No one can measure the good she did with her music. She had, aside from her ability to do artistic work, the rare power of arousing enthusiasm in her pupils and giving to them knowledge of the value of music in their lives and its large possibilities for them.

Her life was an active one, so much so, that she seemed never to rest. Even her summers in the homestead, to which she looked forward with girlish delight throughout the winters were full of activities in the interests of others, as many of our townspeople well know.

To be pure, to be strong, to be happy, and still to be human! How near the perfect life! Miss Metzger was all of these—and yet in naming these qualities every friend will feel that the estimate of her character is still a general one and does not express the precious personal relations between themselves and her.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

COPPERSMITH.

FRANK SHERMAN COPPERSMITH, aged 39 years, two months and seven days, died on Saturday, June 30th, 1906, after an illness of only two weeks, of typhoid fever, although he had been complaining for a long time and almost constantly receiving medical treatment, his rapid decline was a great surprise and shock to his afflicted family and friends, who did not realize that the disease could not be broken. He leaves a wife, one daughter, Leona, aged eight years, and one son, Neil, aged 13 years, and mother-in-law, (Mrs. Frances Stoddard) a member of the household; besides a father, mother, two sisters and one brother, who reside at Freeport, Pa., and one half-brother, A. L. Agey, of Youngstown, O., formerly a resident of Emporium.

Deceased came to Emporium from Freeport, Pa., about 18 years ago and energetically engaged in business, never knowing a time that he could not find something to work at. On Feb. 1st, 1861, he was married to Estella Stoddard, eldest daughter of the late Samuel L., and Frances Stoddard, and was always a kind and loving husband, no hardship being too much for him to endure to please his family or friends. Four years ago he associated himself with the firm of Murry & Coppersmith Co., successors to the late Geo. A. Walker, and conducted an extensive business in the hardware, plumbing and coal business, until the 28th of Nov. 1905, when their business was destroyod by fire, entailing a loss of $9,000. Arrangements had been made to resume their shattered trade, or rather Mr. Coppersmith had arranged to take the hardware branch, having bargained for the block now occupied by H. S. Lloyd.

In public life Mr. Coppersmith was a Republican and acceptably filled the position of deputy county treasurer for the late C. M. Thomas, in 1899, 1900, 1901, and creditably handled the county business. He was also an active member of our fire department. Socially he was companionable, gentlemanly and very considerate of the feelings of others. The bereaved family have the sympathy and consoling aid of our citizens in this the hardest of all afflictions to bear—the loss of husband and father.

Deceased carried a life insurance of $1,500 in favor of his wife—$1,500 of same being with the Macabees. The funeral was held from the family residence, East Allegany Avenue, on Tuesday afternoon, July 3rd, and largely attended. Rev. Mr. Cleaver, of M. E. Church; delivered an able sermon. The floral offerings were very beautiful and plentiful—the piece from the Maccabees especially.

The following relatives and friends from out of town, Michael Coppersmith, (father), Jas. A., H. L. Agly, (brothers,) Mrs. Harry Irwin, (sister,) all of Freeport, Pa., except Mr. Agly, who resides at Youngstown, O.; Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Runals and son Clarence, of Arcade, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Donovon and son Flo, Millport, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jacobs, Mrs. Perry, Shingle House, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Douglas, Olean, N. Y., Mrs. F. C. Watkins, Buffalo.

GILBERT.

Our esteemed citizens, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gilbert, proprietors of the New Warner, were called to their old home at Nunda, N.Y., recently to attend the funeral of Mr. Gilbert's mother. The Mt. Morris Enterprise makes the following reference to the death of the lady: Mrs. Gilbert was the only child of the late John M. Griffith of Oakland, and was born in South Dansville in 1850. Her youth was spent in Oakland, town of Portage, where her father was engaged in the milling business. She was married to Corydon L. Gilbert of Nunda, in 1870, and unto them were born seven children. Outside her own home, among her immediate friends, Mrs. Gilbert's cheerful disposition, kind considerate and unselfish nature, acted as an inspiration to the despondent and disheartened ones with whom she came in contact. Although her tastes were domestic and she delighted in ministering to the happiness and well being of her family, yet she found time for extensive reading, was well informed on matters of general public interests and in sympathy with the beautiful in both art and nature. The patience manifested during her long and tedious illness was an index to a character founded upon strong christian principles and an absolute faith in the Divine.

The beautiful flowers that surrounded the casket were emblems of the pure life that had fled—a life whecein noble purpose was but the call to duty well performed.

The funeral was private and held at appartments Mrs. Gilbert has occupied in the Nunda house, last Thursday afternoon, three of her sons acted as pall bearers and the burial was at Oakwood cemetery.

Besides her husband she is survived by four sons and one daughter; William G. Gilbert of Emporium, Pa.; C. Leon Gilbert of Fenner, Cal.; John M. Gilbert of Buffalo; G. Mark Gilbert of Austin, Pa., and Josephine Gilbert of Nunda.

The attendance was very large, in honor of Mrs. Butler, who resigned his office, which she has so faithfully filled on account of the family leaving Emporium to locate at Port Allegany. The loss of this excellent family, as stated in the PRESS some weeks ago, will be deeply regretted. They leave next week.

A Jolly Fishing Party.

Nelson H. Sizer and H. D. Burlingame, of Altoona, Pa., two former Cameron county gentleman, accompanied by J. C. Hasper and wife, Bellefonte; Wm. Boyce and wife, Wenterburn; Dorsey Griffith, Curwensville; E. E Sanford and son, Altoona, Pa., camposed a jolly fishing party who camped on Parker Run, near Gardeau for several days and from reports they must have had an enjoyable outing. Althoug the water was very low for good fishing, old time anglers like "Nelt" and Homer don't stop at low water, hence the party had plenty of trout, pure mountain water, fresh milk and plenty of good things to eat. A number of our people visited the camp during the stay of the party and "Nelt" got the credit of being related to all of them. Come again friends.

Judge Green is the logical candidate for the Republicans of Clinton county to endorse for president judge of the Twenty-fifth district and the wise thing is to do this at the coming primary election on the 28th inst.—Clinton Rep.

A special Republican primary election will be held in Clinton county on Saturday, July 28, for the election of delegates, who are to select three judicial conferees for the nomination of president Judge in the Twenty-fifth district. There is a strong sentiment in this county favorable to Judge Green's candidacy and from what we learn this sentiment is growing day by day. The unanimous nomination of Judge Green by the Republicans of the district would greatly aid him in his contest for an election.—Lock Haven Republican.

Weddings of Two Popular Cameron County Young People.

MR. CLARENCE J. MILLER and MISS EDNA GERTRUDE COLLINS, of Huntley, were married at the M. E. Parsonage, Sinnamahoning, Thursday, July 5th, by the Rev. W. F. D. Noble. The young couple took the morning train at Huntley without informing their relatives or friends of their intentions, leaving the impression that they were going to visit friends in Williamsport. The ceremony was performed quietly with only the contracting parties and witnesses being present. The happy pair took train No. 3 for Erie, crossed the lake to Buffalo, visiting Niagara Falls and other places of interest, returning home Saturday evening.

Miss Edna is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J Collins and a niece of County Supt. Miss Mattie M. Collins and is a very popular and estimable young lady. Mr. Miller is too well known in Cameron county to be introduced. He is a gentleman in every respect and an earnest church worker, is very prominent in local politics and at present is overseer of the poor; also secretary of the school board of his district; having served in all township offices at different times with general satisfaction.

The young couple will reside in Huntley.

According to the time-honored custom, the many friends of the bride and groom met them at the station on their return Saturday evening and contributed the usual amount of rice and slippers. At 11 o'clock the same evening the Huntley Militia formed in line in front of the Collins residence and fired a salute of twenty guns, loaded with dynamite, after which the grand march was played by the Military band, accompanied by the horns, circular saws and cow-bells. The happy groom was treated to a wheelbarrow ride, with a few baths in the creek as a side issue, to which he submitted with his usual good nature.

After leaving the Collins residence the militia was informed that there was another new bride and groom in town. Thereupon they repaired to the residence of Assistant Foreman Alford Smith and summoned that gentleman to the door and asked for the particulars. Mr. Smish denied the charge, so the boys insisted on Alfred singing one of his good old railroad songs before they went home. He pleaded a bad cold and other conventional excuses, but they were of no avail, and he gracefully submitted to the inevitable and sang the following song entitled: "The Pensy Section Boss."

I'm a jolly section foreman upon the Pensy line;
I'm right at home with shovel, pick and jack;
And when I cast my weather eye along the shining rails
I can always find the bad spots in the track.
The trainmen tip their hats to me as they go swiftly by;
They know my frogs and joints are safe and free;
And the happy Pullman porters always greet me with a smile,
For on my curves they never spill their tea.
In rain or shine, in heat or cold, you'll find me on the line;
I think that I am happier by far
Than the beef trust with its millions as with my men I wait,
While Tony greases up the old hand-car.

Pleasantly Received.

The following flattering notices of Mrs. E. Mersereau Newton, a former pleasant and popular resident of Emporium, who is visiting relatives in Elmira, N. Y., only show how this energetic and talented lady is received wherever she visits in her researches for timely topics:

Mrs. E. Mersereau Newton, of New York city, is visiting friends in Elmira. Mrs. Newton has written a splendid story of Southern California—but the book has other merits than that given by exciting events. The title of the story is "The Veil of Solana," and the author shows her ability to delineate character correctly; and some of the stories furnished by a camping party are as beautiful, and as worthy of a place in literature, as is that most beautiful of all nature story by Henry Van Dyke, entitled "The Blue Flower."—Elmira Advertiser.

Latest Freak Banquets.

The third annual rat carnival of the Monroe Yacht club of Monroe, Mich., was celebrated recently with a great rat feast. A delegation of Chicago yachtsmen, about 30 in all, were the guests of honor. They sat down to a dinner of muskrats, 6,000 of which were prepared for those attending the carnival. Mashed potatoes, corn, coffee and bread were on the side. Persons were there from all parts of the world, says What to Eat. C. Oliver Iselin, well-known yachtsman, headed a delegation from New York city. A rooster supper was a novelty recently enjoyed by the "Eat 'Em All Club," a men's society of Paoli, Ind. The menu was artistically designed, with a rooster feather attached. The decorations contained similar emblems and each guest was required to come with a rooster feather in his hat. The menu consisted of:

Rooster. Rooster on slickers.
Boiled rooster. Slickers on rooster.
Stewed rooster. Rooster hash.
Fried rooster. Rooster salad.
Rooster punch. Rooster cocktail.

The "Eat 'Em All Club" is composed of married men, each of whom in turn gives a dinner every two weeks, that the men may all get at least one good square meal every now and then. The meals are prepared, served and eaten by the men, and no woman is permitted to have anything to do with them. Not a female member of any of the households of the club members is allowed to participate in the preparation or serving of the meals. Members of this club are firm in their convictions that women are wofully deficient in the culinary art. With all the comforts of a railroad dining car and none of the discomforts, 100 friends of Charles Frederick Daly, recently appointed general traffic manager of the Vanderbilt lines east of Buffalo, dined sumptuously and toasted their colleague on the eve of his departure for the east. The dinner took place at the Auditorium, the banquet hall on the sixth floor having been transformed into an excellent imitation of a dining car, without forgetting even the view from the windows. There was the occasional toot toot and clang to remind the diners of eating at the rate of a mile a minute; but there was none of the smoke, cinders or rocking.

One Theory of Wealth.

Why there should be hard-working poor men and idle rich men in the same community is a question which no one has answered, and no one can answer satisfactorily. That is why the opinion is so prevalent that the world, economically considered, is so very much out of joint, believes T. N. Carter, a writer in Atlantic. But although there is so much unanimity in the opinion that wealth ought not to be distributed as it now is, there is still a wide diversity of opinion, where there is any definite opinion at all, as to how it really ought to be distributed. These opinions may, however, be reduced to three fundamentally distinct theories, which I shall call the aristocratic, the socialistic, and the democratic, or liberalistic, theories. The aristocratic theory is that the good things of the world belong more particularly to certain groups or classes than to others, by virtue of some circumstance connected with their birth or heredity, and independently of their individual achievements. The socialistic theory is that wealth ought to be distributed according to needs, or according to some similar plan arranged beforehand, and independently of the individual ability to acquire wealth in the rough-and-ready struggle of life. The democratic, or liberalistic, theory is that wealth ought to be distributed according to productivity, usefulness, or worth.

William Sherring, the young Canadian who won the Marathon race at Athens, gives the credit to his mother, who, he says, supervised his training. She decided what he should eat, and would not cook anything else. When she was told that he had won, she remarked, "Of course. I knew he would. That is what I sent him over for." This is a very pretty sentiment, remarks Youth's Companion, but leaves one in doubt as to what the other young men's mothers said when told that they had not won.

TARIFF REFORM A BLUFF.

Not the People, But the Democratic Politicians Are Calling for It.

While a considerable part of the Democratic party of this country probably amounting to a majority, is becoming easy in mind as far as the question of an available presidential candidate in 1908 is concerned, in view of the return of Democratic sentiment to Mr. Bryan, the question of a paramount issue that will stand the wear and tear of a campaign is a most perplexing one to the party, and very probably to Mr. Bryan himself, says the Albany Journal.

Free coinage of silver, "busting" of trusts, anti-imperialism — these have been tried all in vain in recent years. There is nothing new in sight out of which the Democracy could make a paramount issue, and so, in its desperation, the party is endeavoring to galvanize into a semblance of revivification its old, mummified issue of "tariff reform," which means tariff reduction and ultimate abolition of all import duties.

For success in its attempt the Democracy relies upon the proverbially limited retentive capacity of human memory. It flatters itself with the belief that after a decade the conditions produced by the last experiment with Democratic tariff reform, from which the American people rushed to the Republican party in 1896, are out of mind, and that no more is required than the assiduous fostering of discontent to cause a repetition of the folly of 1892.

But most of the people of this country who passed through the period of distress from 1892 to 1896 have not forgotten either it or its cause. And there is less discontent in this prosperous time than there ever was before in this country. There is no popular demand for tariff reform or tariff revision or tariff reduction or whatever else the Democracy may call the "issue" with which it is seeking once more to impose upon the people. There are no indications of it even from the Democratic party, so far as the rank and file is concerned. It is only the leaders that are clamoring for it, hoping to create, by means of a great volume of noise, a belief that it emanates from large numbers.

The resurrected paramount issue will be tried on the people in next fall's congressional elections, and it behooves the people, for the conservation of their interests, to put it back into its desecrated grave.

THE REPUBLICAN DUTY.

Stand Fast to the Historic Position of Protecting American Welfare.

Mr. Bryan's utterances in Berlin make the Republican task of opposition somewhat simpler than has appeared, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

From these utterances it is not shown that a trip around the world has taken the burs of the wilderness from this wanderer from the Platte.

For Mr. Bryan still looks revolutionary. He talks of free silver, of going so far with socialism, of changing the basis of our prosperity, etc., etc. He still flirts with isms.

Thus it follows that a policy that attempts to compete with Bryanisms is not going to win, for it is very evident that Mr. Bryan still rejoices in his radicalism.

And it does not lie in the way of Republican duty to take up greater radicalism as a means of combating him. It does not lie even in meeting him half way.

Republican duty is to stand fast to the historic position of the welfare of the American nation—to hold to our prosperity, not to indulge in caprices that will overthrow it. This is the simple proposition that will confront the Republican party and its candidates for the presidency.

And whoever its candidate shall be, whether Mr. Fairbanks or Mr. Root or Mr. Cannon or any other, the simple Republican fact that he must recognize national prosperity as the basis of national life must ever be kept uppermost.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

☞Mr. Bryan is willing to be convinced, however, that the circumstances demand it.—Chicago Tribune.

☞The Democrats have a ready-made candidate. They will probably have to advertise for a platform.—Cleveland Leader.

☞Mr. Bryan will probably wait a couple of years, however, before writing his formal letter of acceptance.—Kansas City Star.

☞The Bryan boom is emphasized by the number of Democratic state conventions that are refraining from indorsing Hearst.—Chicago Record-Herald.

☞In the old day it used to be a popular political stunt "to twist the British lion's tail." Now the tail-twisting is all confined to the home menagerie. At the present time the beef trust's caudal end is showing a few wrinkles from well-directed rotary effort.—Minneapolis Journal.

☞A little more and Grover Cleveland will have nobody to share his unchanged feelings except Judge Parker, and even Judge Parker may not hold out.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

☞The Russian douma is thinking of taking up the silver question. This shows what an utterly useless thing the douma really is.—Atlanta Journal.

☞Mr. Bryan is likely to find so much to make him glad when he gets home that he may regret his short-sightedness in not having gone abroad earlier and oftener.—Chicago Record-Herald.

BRYAN'S VERSATILITY.

Makes a Grand Stand Play for the Votes of Fledgling Socialists.

W. J. Bryan has been "off the main route for some time," but it has come to his knowledge that some Democratic state conventions have nominated him in advance as the Democratic candidate for president in 1908, and we have a report of his comments upon that fact, says the Chicago Chronicle.

He appreciates the compliment, though it is "sudden"—by which, possibly, he may mean premature. Be that as it may, he is quoted as saying that it is too early "either to make or discuss political plans for 1908." There certainly is time for a good many things to happen during the two years between the nomination by Missouri and the nomination by the national Democratic convention.

These are times of hysteria, sham and real, and things that are said and done about a nomination for the presidency two years in the future are liable to become damaged in cold storage during the interval. The eulogiums recently pronounced by the penitents Cols. Watterson and Vilas may look silly in June, 1908.

While Col. Bryan realizes that it is too early for him either to make or discuss political plans for 1908, he cannot resist the temptation to talk. Possibly the colonels of the other metallic persuasion strongly suspected such would be the case, and that may account for their otherwise startling eccentricity in coming forward so promptly as representatives of the Palmer and Buckner gold men and pronouncing their sonorous eulogiums upon the great apostle of 16 to 1. They may have had the idea that if they broke forth into panegyric Mr. Bryan would certainly break forth into speech which is silver, instead of maintaining the silence which is golden, and talk himself to death before 1908.

If so their expectations are in a fair way to be realized. Mr. Bryan certainly has made a good beginning if the dispatches from Berlin do him no injustice. He is reported from that city as praising the Republican reformers and exhorting the Republican party to listen to their voice and get the start of the Democrats in the reform business. If the people really like the sort of reform now in the air they will naturally hold fast to the party which first takes up the reform work. If they do not like it what will become of Mr. Bryan and the rest of the Democratic reformers?

Mr. Bryan is further quoted: "My political career discloses no instance where I have abandoned any principle formerly espoused. So far as silver is concerned, I can only say that events have fully vindicated the position of the bimetallists."

Now, there is something for Mr. Francis and Cols. Watterson and Vilas and the Democratic men of affairs in the east to ponder. Do they think that Mr. Bryan has already begun to talk too much and is in a fair way to get a terrible shaking as Pollparrot did when she said "Sick 'em!" once too often to the dog?

In this same deliverance Mr. Bryan lets us all know that he not only stands for bimetallism still, but also for government ownership and operation of public utilities on a tremendous scale. He has abandoned no principle formerly espoused and he has thoroughly committed himself to government ownership.

He attempts to make a distinction between "Democracy," by which he evidently means such ownership, and socialism. "Democracy," he says, "recognizes competition as legitimate and tries to protect the competitive principle from attack. Socialism sees competition as an evil to be eliminated by public ownership and operation of all means of production and distribution."

But he nastens to add that, "while this distinction between Democracy and socialism should not be overlooked, the Democratic platform must be one of progress and reform and not merely of opposition to Republican policies or socialistic ideas."

That is to say, the Democratic party should be hospitable to socialistic public ownership ideas in order to gather in the votes of half-fledged socialists.

This may be satisfactory to "conservative Democrats" whose sleep is disturbed by the specter of socialism, but it will not attract to the support of Mr. Bryan men who care to offer strenuous resistance to socialistic tendencies.

☞Even if Mr. Bryan's boom should have no substantial results otherwise, it may give him the necessary material for "The Third Battle." Meanwhile NOW is the time to subscribe for the Commoner.—Chicago Tribune.

☞Try the new and improved Bryan. Everything modern and up-to-date. Guaranteed to go well in harness, and not to run amuck. No Democrat of any variety can hereafter afford to be without this wonderful development of the last ten years.—Advt. — Indianapolis News (Ind.).

☞For the third time the Democratic party is calling Mr. Bryan to lead it. In 1908 the Republican party will "call" him for the third time, and when he shows down his hand he will probably have the same old pair of deuces.

☞Disregarding the causes that have led to the importation of $50,000,000 in gold during the past few weeks, we would like to ask if such importation could or would have taken place if we had had an adverse balance of trade such as we have always had under free trade tariffs?—American Economist.

THAW IS INDICTED.

Grand Jury Finds that the Young Millionaire Is Guilty of First Degree Murder.

New York. — Harry Thaw was indicted Thursday for murder in the first degree for killing Stanford White last Monday night. His wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, appeared as a witness before the grand jury, but begged to be excused from giving any testimony. She was treated with every consideration by Assistant District Attorney Garvan and by the jurors, who did not insist that she should answer any questions.

Thaw will plead to the indictment in court this morning. No time will be set for the trial until District Attorney Jerome returns to the city next week. In the meantime witnesses have been summoned to appear in John Doe proceedings at the district attorney's office to help the latter frame up his presentation of the case.

The grand jury's consideration of the case was brief and followed a perfunctory inquest before a coroner's jury which heard the testimony of witnesses to the tragedy and rendered a formal verdict that White's death had been caused by Thaw. The latter calmly listened to the testimony and while the jury was out he chatted with his counsel and a policeman sitting near, laughing aloud at one stage of the conversation. When the jury had completed its verdict Thaw was recommitted to the Tombs without bail. His indictment was announced soon afterward.

Mrs. Thaw, following her appearance before the grand jury, crossed the Bridge of Sighs and entered the city prison to see her husband. They talked together for a long while and when Mrs. Thaw finally attempted to leave the great granite building she found her way blocked by the largest crowd, the police say, that has ever gathered about the structure. She was virtually held a prisoner by the inquisitive throng for 30 minutes, when reserves from many police precincts managed to clear a way for her.

Stanford White was buried Thursday at St. James, L. I., where he had a summer home. The services were held in the Episcopal church and the interment was made in the graveyard surrounding the quaint little edifice.

In the opinion of the physician who performed the autopsy on White's body the life of the architect was shortened not more than two years by the bullets from Thaw's pistol. He was found to be suffering from Bright's disease, from incipient tuberculosis and from fatty degeneration of the liver.

Thaw sent a message Thursday from the Tombs to Anthony Comstock, president of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, saying he had received a letter which it would pay Mr. Comstock to investigate. An agent of the society called upon Thaw in the afternoon, but was not admitted at that time. It was said either the agent or Mr. Comstock might see Thaw to-day.

HARVARD WON BIG RACE.

Cambridge Oarsmen Defeated Yale in a Nip and Tuck Contest—Yale Won Two Minor Events.

New London, Conn. — Harvard's varsity crew triumphed over Yale on Thursday before the greatest crowd that ever gathered here on a race day and, coming after years of defeat, victory was sweet indeed to the crimson. It was a great Yale crew that Harvard defeated, a crew that had broken all records on the Thames in practice and went to the stake boat a favorite, and Harvard's joy is unconfined.

Harvard won, but Yale rowed a race that will live long in the annals of college sports. Not once from the start until the last sixteenth of a mile did the shells cease to lap each other. The men in the rival boats could see each other for more than three miles and a half, as first one coxswain and then the other called upon his crew to push his shell ahead. Then and only then did Harvard rally and get the lead, for the killing pace proved too much for two of the Yale men and in the final spurt Boulton and Noyes, of the blue, were done, their oars literally slipping away from from them.

Here Harvard began to open up clear water between the two shells and in the last ten or 15 strokes of the race she pulled away from her rival. Noyes, Yale's No. 6, absolutely exhausted, began to miss the stream on the catch and swing his oar through the air. He sat up in his seat until the flag dropped and then fell backwards into the boat like a dead man. Chase, at No. 5, raised Noyes' head and dashed water on him, but he remained unconscious for a considerlength of time.

Harvard won the race by less than two lengths and a half. Her time was 23 minutes and two seconds, Yale's 23 minutes 11 seconds.

Yale defeated Harvard in the freshman and 'varsity four-oared races.

Hottest Day of the Year.

Columbus, O. — Thursday was the hottest day of the year in Columbus. The mercury reached 92 degrees. William Underwood, 65 years old, a porter, was prostrated by the heat and may die.

Really, congress could bring itself to adjourn if it really made up its mind to the plunge back into obscurity. And then there are so many fences really in need of repair.

If President Mouravitch has occasion to communicate with the czar and from the czar to the douma, he will be wise if he will eschew the telephone in the light of what happened to Senator Lodge.

In advising the sweet girl graduates of Washintgon to "keep their eyes on the stars," President Roosevelt made a mistake. He ought to have suggested to them that it would be a good thing to keep an eye on the cook.

The ever burning question: "What shall we do with our boys?" seems to be satisfactorily answered in the following advertisement, which appears in the window of a Farrington road butcher's shop: "Wanted, a respectable boy for beef sausages."

Massachusetts is deeply depressed over the fact that one of her legislators has been detected selling his vote for $50. But whether the depression is because of the guilt or because of the price is not altogether clear.

Culture, to some foolish young men and women, means a languid and superior contempt for all except a few choice things. In reality, culture means the power of full and delicate appreciation, and the more widely cultured a man is, the more things he knows how to appreciate.

Just 152 captains of full-rigged ships have been born in Searsport, Me., or have lived in that town while in command of their vessels. The largest ship in the list was the May Flint, which had a gross tonnage of 3,288 tons. The smallest was the Vistula, 400 tons. Searsport's banner year in shipping was 1885.

The signal corps of the United States army is photographing San Francisco's ruins from balloons. A series of pictures is being taken to be kept on the file by the war department in Washington. Several hundred have already been taken of the different buildings and an order sent for three balloons, so that a complete picture of the city can be had.

The Aikin law, which increased the saloon tax to $1,000 per annum, closed between 15 and 25 per cent. of the saloons of the state of Ohio at the outset and it is estimated that as many more will quit before the second installment falls due. As a saloon-closer, the Aikin law seems to have the bulge on the Beall and Jones laws, even though it was not approved by the Anti-Saloon league.

While paying a visit to a friend residing in this country, an American gentleman got into conversation with a youngster who displayed a most absorbing and flattering interest in his native land. "I'm sure it's pleasant to be told there are not rattlesnakes in all the gardens," said the youngster with a smile, "but my cousin wrote not long ago that he had seen forty wigwams in one little village. Perhaps," he added, as the American made no immediate reply, "the wigwams are not so venomous as rattlesnakes, are they?"

Speaking of summer picincs, it is well to have the affair a subscription one, the subscription in every case taking the form of some contribution to the general feast. Call a little meeting in advance and let each person say what he or she desires to contribute. One person may choose rolls, another sandwitches, another lemons and sugar, another coffee, others cakes, pickles and relishes. This is much pleasanter and more social than the plan sometimes adopted of having each person bring with him a separate lunch, on which he dines in solitary state.

In forming a chemical compound corresponding to the viscous fluid out of which silkworm spins his delicate thread, the French chemists found, strangely enough, that the best substitute was a solution of gun-cotton, which also serves as the basis for the most powerful and deadly of modern explosives. To what extent this gun-cotton silk is relieved of its explosive qualities before being woven into laces and dress fabrics, seems to be somewhat questionable. Certainly a young woman gowned in gun-cotton would be a formidable, if not dangerous, object.

WILL BRING ROADS TO TIME

ATTORNEY GENERAL ORDERS SUITS AGAINST RAILWAYS.

Violation of Safety Appliance Law Charged and Attempt to Recover Penalties Will Be Made.

Washington. — Attorney General Moody has directed that suits be brought against a large number of railroad companies to recover penalties for violation of the safety appliance law through failure to keep their equipment in proper condition. The largest number of violations attributed to any road is 52 against the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad company. A statement issued by the department of justice says:

"Attorney General Moody is very much in earnest in the enforcement of these laws which were enacted for the purpose of saving life and limb. In his letter to the various United States attorneys under date of December 30, 1904, he said:

"The government is determined upon a strict enforcement of these statutes, which were enacted for the promoting of the safety of the traveling public in general, as well as for the protection of railway employes. Therefore, any case of violation which is brought to your attention by the interstate commerce commission or its inspectors, or by other parties, must be promptly and carefully investigated, and suit for the statutory penalty be instituted and earnestly pressed, if in your judgment the facts justify the course.

"'You are instructed accordingly, and you are expected to be vigilant and active in the matter."

OIL HEADS ARE SAFE.

Little Likelihood of Indictments Against Rockefeller and Other High Standard Officials.

Washington. — Although the department of justice has announced that it proposes to begin criminal proceedings against the officials of the Standard Oil, the intimation is given that it is doubtful if indictments may be found against such men in the Standard Oil company as John D. Rockefeller, H. H. Rogers and John D. Archbold.

An official of the department of justice has indicated that while the government would press the prosecutions vigorously, he did not have an idea that the officials of the Standard Oil company would be reached, in criminal proceedings, any more than the presidents of railroads, personally, are reached through similar proceedings.

"It may be," he said, measuring from the ground with his hand, "that we may get some of the officials half way up. We are not after mere clerks, but, if responsible officials have been violating the law, we desire to bring them to book."

The Standard Oil company will be prosecuted as a corporation for violation of the Elkins law forbidding rebates or the giving or receiving of discriminating rates. The method of prosecution adopted successfully at Kansas City before Judge Smith McPherson, which resulted in the conviction of the packing houses, is to be followed to a certain extent in the fight against the Standard Oil.

MURDERS HIS BRIDE TO BE

Young Man Then Shoots Himself in the Presence of Guests Assembled for the Wedding.

Comfort, Tex.—In the presence of the assembled wedding guests at the home of his intended bride, Joseph Reinhardt, who was to have married her, shot and killed Miss Ernestine Kutzer Tuesday evening and then shot himself, with probably fatal results.

Young Reinhardt walked into the room in which Miss Kutzer and the guests were assembled, drew a pistol from his pocket and pointed it at his sweetheart. She held up her hand as if to ward off the danger and three shots were fired at her. The first bullet entered her heart, killing her. Reinhardt then turned the pistol upon himself and fired two bullets into his own breast. The cause of the tragery is not known. The theory of neighbors is that the young man was demented. The people were highly respected.

Bellefontaine, O.—John Burke and wife and baby, traveling by wagon from Indiana to Bucyrus, O., were struck by an Ohio Central train west of here Wednesday and all fatally injured. Burke was asleep on the seat holding the baby in his arms, and Mrs. Burke was lying on the bottom of the wagon when the train hit the wagon.

WORK ACCOMPLISHED BY CONGRESS; IMPORTANT LEGISLATION ENACTED

Washington. — Important measures extending federal regulation and control have been enacted at the first session of the fifty-ninth congress, now rapidly drawing to a close.

The railroad rate and the meat inspection bills will soon become laws.

The pure food bill was agreed upon by the conferees for the senate and house. The house bill was taken as a basis of agreement, and into this were grafted many of the important sections of the senate measure.

There has been no marked division on party lines in effecting the above results, the differences being only as to ways and means rather than as to policy.

Besides branching off into this new field of legislative endeavor, the present session of congress has made itself important in other ways. It has added one, and perhaps two new states to the union and by so doing has disposed of four territories.

Great results to the people are expected from the removal of the tax on denatured alcohol, and if predictions are fulfilled, heat, light and power are to be supplied by alcohol made from the cornfields of the country, from sugar beets and sugar cane, from fruits and other vegetation.

By a deft turn of legislative points of view, the questions which have perplexed congress for some time regarding the Panama canal have been settled. The president may dig a lock canal as fast as he pleases. A joint resolution was agreed to requiring canal supplies to be made of American manufacture.

Congress has not dwelt with the foreign situation to any extent. An act making a much needed reorganization of the consular service was passed. Nothing was done in the Santo Domingo controversy and the legislation affecting our colonial possessions was meager and unimportant, although tariff revision for the Philippines received the attention and approval of the house, and an act was passed revising the tariff collected by the Philippine government. A coinage act for the islands also was passed.

A large number of bills were introduced in the two houses. The calendar records that the number has reached nearly 20,000, 500 more than were introduced during the entire three sessions of the last congress.

Before discussing the number of acts passed, it is interesting to note that with all the strenuous exertions of an appropriations committee in the house, with a new chairman—Representative Tawney—it has been impossible to hold the appropriations down to much less than $900,000,000, although "economy" was the watchword from the start.

Although there has been an effort to prevent the enlargement of what is known as the "permanent annual appropriations," this character of expense has increased during the session o the extent of nearly $5,000,000, making a total permanent annual appropriation of more than $140,000,000. As it happened, the increase in this appropriation came in one day in the house. The meat inspection bill carried a permanent annual appropriation of $3,000,000, and the same day the house passed the bill adding $1,000,000 to a like amount annually for the support of the state militia. Measures were introduced on which action will be pressed at the next session to repeal a portion of the permanent annual appropriations of the government.

Organized labor has succeeded in its requests of the present session of congress to the extent of securing the enactment of what is known as the "employers' liability bill." This enactment will make it possible for an employe to secure damages for his injury, notwithstanding his own negligence may have been in part responsible for that injury.

Another bill which has received the approval of the senate and will doubtless become a law before the end of the session is that limiting the hours of continuous service of railway trainmen to 16 consecutive hours' work, to be followed by 10 hours' rest. The much agitated eight-hour bill received a favorable vote from the labor committee of the house, but too late to secure action at the hands of congress. The anti-injunction bill was postponed in committee until the next session of congress upon a direct vote on that proposition.

SENDS ICE MEN TO PRISON

One Year in Workhouse and Big Fine for Violating Anti-Trust Law in Ohio.

Toledo, O.—In common pleas court Monday Judge Kinkade imposed the maximum sentence of $5,000 fine and one year in the workhouse on five icemen guilty of conspiracy in restraint of trade. The men sentenced are:

Joseph A. Miller, who was convicted; R. A. Beard, R. C. Lemmon, H. P. Breining and Peter H. Waters, who pleaded guilty. The judge said the sentences might be mitigated in the event the men made restitution.

The five men, all of them prominent in business and social circles, were taken to the county jail to await the making out of the necessary papers to commit them to the workhouse, unless, in the meantime, they meet Judge Kinkade's requirements of restitution to the public.

TERRIBLE ITCHING SCALP.

Eczema Broke Out Also on Hands and Limbs—An Old Soldier Declares: "Cuticura Is a Blessing."

"At all times and to all people I am willing to testify to the merits of Cuticura. It saved me from worse than the torture of hades, about the year 1900, with itching on my scalp and temples, and afterwards it commenced to break out on my hands. Then it broke out on my limbs. I then went to a Surgeon, whose treatment did me no good, but rather aggravated the disease. I then told him I would go and see a physician in Erie. The reply was that I could go anywhere, but a case of eczema like mine could not be cured; that I was too old (80). I went to an eminent doctor in the city of Erie and treated with him for six months, with like results. I had read of the Cuticura Remedies, and so I sent for the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and continued taking the Resolvent until I had taken six bottles, stopping it to take the Pills. I was now getting better. I took two baths a day, and at night I let the lather of the Soap dry on. I used the Ointment with great effect after washing in warm water, to stop the itching at once. I am now cured. The Cuticura treatment is a blessing, and should be used by every one who has itching of the skin. I can't say any more, and thank God that He has given the world such a curative. Wm. H. Gray, 3303 Mt. Vernon St., Philadelphia, Pa., August 2, 1905."

It is estimated that from 400,000 to 500,000 natives have died in Africa of sleeping sickness in the last ten years. The disease is, moreover, spreading with alarming rapidity, yet nothing is done to check it. The weight of opinion is that no person once infected ever recovers. Despite its name, sleep is not an important symptom, as it occurs only towards the end of the disease in a small number of cases.

A curious case of museum robbery is engaging attention at Weimar. An agent offered some time ago to the Goethe-Schiller museum a series of Goethe manuscripts, which on examination proved to have been stolen from the museum itself. The agent explained that he had received them in good faith from a well-known antiquarian in Berlin. A search of the antiquarian's house brought to light many other documents belonging to the Weimar museum.

One on the Doctor.

A Baltimore physician who boarded a crowded car in Charles street, noticed a woman standing and a big German sprawling over twice the seat area that was necessary to him. Indignantly the physician said to his: "See here! Why don't you move a little so that this tired woman may have a seat?" For a moment the German looked dazed. Then a broad smile spread over his countenance as he answered: "Say ,dot's a joke on you, all right! Dot's my vife!"

A Case of

STOMACH CATARRH.

Miss Mary O'Brien, 306 Myrtle Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna cured me in five weeks of catarrh of the stomach, after suffering for four years and doctoring without effect. In common with other grateful ones who have been benefited by your discovery, I say, All hail to Peruna."

Mr. H. J. Henneman, Oakland, Neb., writes:

"I waited before writing to you about my sickness, catarrh of the stomach, which I had over a year ago.

"There were people who told me it would not stay cured, but I am sure that I am cured, for I do not feel any more ill effects, have a good appetite and am getting fat.

"So I am, and will say to all, I am cured for good.

"I thank you for your kindness.

"Peruna will be our house medicine hereafter."

Catarrh of the stomach is also known in common parlance as dyspepsia, gastritis and indigestion. No medicine will be of any permanent benefit except it removes the catarrh.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. J. E. Waggoner, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I can most heartily recommend your Castoria to the public as a remedy for children's complaints. I have tried it and found it of great value."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."

The PRESS correspondent enjoyed a rare treat Monday last while visiting in town. Mr. J. A. The flower beds are surrounded with white concrete guards, in which are enclosed beautiful Geraniums, Chrysanthemums, Sweet Peas, Marigolds, Clamatis, Astors, Flowering Beans, Phlox, Nastirtums and Crimson and Baby Rambler Roses. The latter are being trained to grow over a wire arch. In fact his plants are all strictly high-grade and are arranged with artistic taste, which reflects much credit on Mr. Dice's fine handiwork. In speaking of these flowers the humble poet begs to add:

They wave fond signals to the summer sky,
Or nod so gently to the wandering winds;
They lend us inspirations from on high,
And their perfume with zephyrs sweetly blend.

The farmers are digging up their harvesting tools, preparatory to a bountiful crop.

Mrs. J. H. Evans is visiting in the valley. Her son and daughter paid her a visit on Sunday last and reported an enjoyable time.

The ever glorious 4th was celebrated here in a substantial way. The neighbors assembled at the grove and enjoyed an iceberg of delicious ice cream and water mellon. In the evening the sky was ablaze with the rockets red glare and miniture baloons by our Italian cousins.

A jolly crowd of fishermen alighted from the Flyer on Wednesday from Altoona, headed by two drummers, in the person of H. D. Burlingame and N. H. Sizer.

Robert Krebs and family greeted their friends here during the 4th, assisting in celebrations of various kinds.

Uncle Charlie Weller took a delightful outing among friends in Olean, Bradford and Buffalo. He saw while away a freak in the postal service, 150 lbs. going for two cents. Old Chronic Sores.

While it is not advisable to heal old sores entirely, they should be kept in a good condition, for which this salve is especially valuable. For sore nipples Chamberlain's Salve has no superior. For Sale by L. Taggart, J. E. Smith, Sterling Run; Crum Bros., Sinnamahoning.

It is hard for a bare foot man to go to Congress on his morals.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trail was therefore a great surprise, instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim; is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by L. Taggart; J. E. Smith, Sterling Run; Crum Bros., Sinnamahoning.

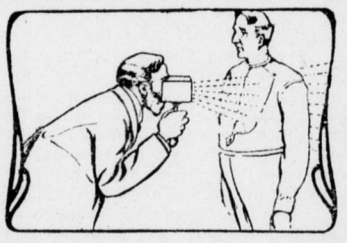
The whipping post is the only real punishment for a man, may he be called such, who goes home filled up with bad "booze" and beats his wife. There are such people in every town we are sorry to say and the whipping post or a coat of tar and feathers would be most appropriate for an individual of this stripe.

Many a man goes to congress with an empty dinner pail. But when he returns its different.

CONSUMPTION'S WARNING



Inside facts soon become evident in outside symptoms.—DR. G. G. GREEN.

¶The aid of scientific inventions is not needed to determine whether your lungs are affected. The first symptoms can be readily noted by anyone of average intelligence.

¶There is no disease known that gives so many plain warnings of its approach as consumption, and no serious disease that can be so quickly reached and checked, if the medicine used is Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which is made to cure consumption.

¶It is in the early stages that German Syrup should be taken, when warnings are given in the cough that won't quit, the congestion of the bronchial tubes and the gradual weakening of the lungs, accompanied by frequent expectoration.

¶But no matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has already attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble.

¶New trial bottles, 25c. Regular size, 75c. At all druggists.

METZGER.

caused profound sorrow in this community. Miss Metzger was for several years in charge of the Department of Vocal Music at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, and was widely known in this city. Her activities touched our social and intellectual life at so many points and always with such beneficent grace, that the intelligence of her death brings a sense of irreparable loss. An artist of pronounced ability and unusual conscientiousness, she left her impress wherever her work was done. But not only within the sphere of her legitimate labors was her influence felt; it readhed out far beyond and blessed and brightened everything and everybody with which it came in contact. Her musical conceptions and standards were pure and high; as an interpreter of her art she has never had a superior in our midst, and she was equally gifted as an inspirer of genuine appreciation and of musical feeling. Rarely has a woman so richly dowered been among us, for in addition to her genious for music, she possessed a marked talent for art. Indeed, at one time it was a question whether she should pursue music or painting as a career. And cementing these beautiful gifts was a personality so magnetic, a womanliness so strong and tender, a kindliness of such exquisite sympathy and generosity, a character of so noble fibre that one was tempted to forget the artist in the creature. How many acts of disinterested goodness can we recall of her who has gone! The memories of her fair life weave themselves into the harmonies she wrought and linger around us as a breathing symphony. In thathigh realm wherein she walked, how well did she exemplify the real unity between Art and Ethics—the one Indivisible Beauty that gathers into its imperishable radiance all thought and living."

REV. O. S METZLER SAYS.

I had planned to go to Emporium to-day that I might attest by my presence, simply silently, at the funeral my profound regard for the one so loved and esteemed and respected by us all—but the placing of the services for Sunday will render my attendance impossible and I feel that I must further and more fully express my deep sorrow of heart and the sence of sympathy, sincere, that I continue to feel toward all upon whom this bereaving stroke has fallen so heavily. When I received the news in my home the tears started to my eyes and from the shock occasioned I do not and cannot recover. There is something inexpressibly sad and mysterious that this soul so dependent on the ministries of others and with others so dependent on her ministries, so clinging to life in every fiber of her being, so in love with life and fitted in all the amplitude and fullness of her powers for its utmost requirements, to go down into the silences and shadows, and that under circumstances from which we all instinctively recoil, is baffling to the finite understanding and to unravel the mystery or mitigate the grief that has gathered around so many hearts is something that I will not attempt. I have as much need to be comforted as to administer cheer and could I be at the funeral, the attitude most befitting my feelings would be absolute non-participation. Others may tell the story of her life, its self forgetfulness, its struggles, its triumphs, its devotion to the welfare of others. Her essential strength, strength of will, of energy, of industry of patience, constantly impressed me. To accomplish what she did was not easy, but her will was strong enough to compell her life to do noble service and to achieve results scarcely, short of wonderful. She was a true woman. No one could come within the sphere of her presence and not feel all that was true, chivalrous and manly going out toward the woman at his side. It was the fine potent power of her femininity, her gentleness, her goodness, her sincerity and purity, that evoked all that was reverent in the human heart. One of the finest things that can be said about her was that she had troops of friends among all classes. On the public side of her life she had deserved honor and on the private side she had honor and reverent affection. But she has gone from mortal sight but not from the sight of the soul. She has gone from the sorrows and pains and perplexities of life but she has passed into the morning of immortality. We all know of her love for the summers spent in Emporium, and with what pleasure she hailed the return of her annual vacation period. She frequently said to me that it made her stronger in health and steadier in nerves to spend the bright summer days amid the beautiful hills of her girlhood home. She said these days made her better in everyway and in fact were necessary to her in the restored energy it gave her for her arduous work, to be taken up with the resumption of the school term. But with the home-coming this year, there were greener pastures and purer breezes awaiting her and she was not long to remain away from them.

Apropo are these words of our own Whittier.

God giveth quietness at last,
The common way that all must pass,
She went with mortal yearning fond,
To fuller life and love beyond.

I am truly your friend,

O. S. METZLER.

"M'sieu Zhames, Mees Annesley rides thees morning. You will prepairre yourself according,"—and she rattled on in her absurd native tongue (every other native tongue is absurd to us, you know!)—

"He is charming and handsome,
With his uniform and saber;
And his fine black eyes
Look love as he rides by!"

while the chef in the kitchen glared furiously at his omelette souffle, and vowed terrible things to M'sieu Zhames if he looked at Celeste more than twice a day.

"Good morning," said M'sieu Zhames, hanging up his towel. His face glowed as the result of the vigorous rubbing it had received.

"Bon jour!"—admiringly.

"Don't give me any of your tong joors, Miss,"—stolidly. "There's only one language for me, and that's English."

Merci! You Anglaises are so conceit! How you like me to teach you French, eh M'sieu Zhames?"

"Not for me,"—shaking his head. She was very pretty, and under ordinary circumstances . . . He did not finish the thought, but I will for him. Under ordinary circumstances, M'sieu Zhames would have kissed her.

"No teach you French? Non? Extraorrdnaire!" She tripped away, laughing, while the chef tugged at his royal and M'sieu Zhames whistled.

"Hang the witch!" the new groom murmured. "Her mistress must be very generous, or very positive of her own charms, to keep a sprite like this maid about her. I wonder if I'll run into Karloff?" Karloff! The name chilled him, somehow. What was Karloff to her! Had he known that she was to be in Washington for the winter? What irony, if fate should make him the groom and Karloff the bridegroom! If Karloff loved her, he could press his suit frankly and openly. And, as matters stood, what chance on earth had he, Warburton? "Chuck was right; I've made a mistake, and I am beginning to regret it the very first morning." He snapped his fingers and proceeded to the right wing, where the horses were.

At nine o'clock he led Jane and Dick out to the porte-cochere and waited. He had not long to loiter, for she came out at once, drawing on her gauntlets and taking in long breaths of the morning air. She nodded briefly, but pleasantly, and came down the steps. Her riding-habit was of the conventional black, and her small, shapely boots were of patent-leather. She wore no hat on her glorious head, which showed her good sense and her scorn for freckles and sunburn.

"We shall ride north, James; the roads are better and freer. Jane has a horror of cars."

"Yes, Miss Annesley,"—deferentially. "You will have to teach me the lay of the land here-abouts, as I am rather green."

"I'll see to it that you are made perfectly acquainted with the roads. You do not know Washington very well, then?"

"No, Miss. Shall I give you a—er—boot up?" He blushed. He had almost said "leg up."

She assented and raised her boot, under which he placed his palm, and sprang into the saddle. He mounted in his turn and waited.

"When we ride alone, James, I shall not object to your riding at my side; but when I have guests, always remember to keep five yards to the rear."

"Yes, Miss." If he could have got rid of the idea of Karloff and the possibilities which his name suggested, all this would have appealed to him as exceedingly funny.

"Forward, then!"—and she touched Jane's flank with her crop.

The weather was perfect for riding; no sun, a keen breeze from the northwest, and a dust-settled road. Warburton confessed to me afterward that this first ride with her was one of the most splendid he had ever ridden. Both animals were perfect saddle-horses, such as are to be found only in the south. They started up the road at a brisk trot, and later broke into a canter which lasted fully a mile. How beautiful she was, when at length they slowed down into a walk! Her cheeks were flaming, her eyes dancing and full of luster, her hair was tumbled about and tendrils fluttered down her cheeks. She was Diana; only he hoped that she was not inclined to celibacy.

"Have you ever ridden with women before, James?"

"Several times with my major's daughter,"—thoughtlessly.

"Your major's daughter? Who was your regimental colonel?"

James bit his lips, and under his breath disregarded William's warning about "cussing." "Permit me, Miss Annesley, to decline to answer."

"Did you ride as an attendant?"

"Yes; I was a trooper."

"You speak very good English for a stableman."

"I have not always been a stableman."

"I dare say. I should give a good deal to know what you have been. Come, James, tell me what the trouble was. I have influence; I might help you."

"I am past help;"—which was true enough, only the real significance of his words passed over her head. "I thank you for your kindness."

If she was piqued, she made no sign. "James, were you once a gentleman, in the sense of being well-born?"

"Miss Annesley, you would not believe me if I told you who I am and what I have been."

"Are you a deserter?"—looking him squarely in the eye. She saw the color as it crept under his tan.

"I have my honorable discharge,"—briefly.

"I shall ask you to let me see it. Have you ever committed a dishonorable act? I have a right to know."

"I have committed one dishonorable act, Miss Annesley. I shall always regret it."

She gave him a penetrating glance. "Very well; keep your secret."

And there was no more questioning on that ride; there was not even casual talk, such as a mistress might make to her servant. There was only the clock, clock of hoofs and the clink of bit metal. Warburton did not know whether he was glad or sorry.

She dismounted without her groom's assistance, which somewhat disappointed that worthy gentleman. If she was angry, to his eye there was no visible evidence of it. As he took the bridles in hand, she addressed him; though in doing so, she did not look at him, gave her attention to her gauntlets, which she pulled slowly from her aching fingers.

"I HAVE NOT ALWAYS BEEN A STABLE MAN."

"This afternoon I shall put you in care of Pierre, the cook. I am giving a small dinner on Monday evening, and I shall have to call on you to serve the courses. Later I shall seek a butler, but for the present you will have to act in that capacity."

He wasn't sure; it might have been a flash of sunlight from behind a cloud. If it was a smile, he would have given much to know what had caused it.

He tramped off to the stables. A butler! Well, so be it. He could only reasonably object when she called upon him to act in the capacity of a chambermaid. He wondered why he had no desire to laugh.

CHAPTER XII.

A TICKLISH BUSINESS.

Pierre was fierce and fat and 40, but he could cook the most wonderful roasts and ragouts that Warburton ever tasted; and he could take a handful of vegetables and an insignificant bone and make a soup that would have tickled the jaded palate of a Lucullus. Warburton presented himself at the kitchen door.

"Ah!" said Pierre, striking a dramatic pose, a ladle in one hand and a pan in the other. "So you are zee new groom? Good! We make a butler out of you? Bah! Do you know zee difference between a broth and a soup? Eh?"

The new groom gravely admitted that he did.

"Hear to me!"—and Pierre struck his chest with a ladle. "I teach you how to sairve; I, Pierre Flageot, will teach a hostler to be a butler! Bah!"

"That is what I am sent here for."

"Here to me! If zay haf oysters zay are placed on zee table before zee guests enter. V'la? Then zee soup. You sairve one deesh at a time. You do not carry all zee deeshes at once. And you take zee deesh, so!"—illustrating. "Then you wait till zay push aside zee soup deesh. Then you carry zem away. V'la?"

Warburton signified that he understood.

"I carve zee meats," went on the amiable Pierre. "You haf nozzing to do wiz zee meats. You rest zee deesh on zee flat of zee hand, so! Always sairve to zee right uf zee guests. Vatch zat zay do not move while you sairve. You spill zee soup and I keel you! To spill zee soup ees a crime. Now, take hold uf thees soup deesh."

Warburton took it clumsily by the rim. Pierre snatched it away with a volley of French oaths. William said that there was to be no "cussing," but Pierre seemed to be an immune and not included in this order.

"Idiot! Imbecile! Non, non! Thees way. You would put zee thumb in zee soup. Zare! You haf catch zat. Come to zee dining-hall. I show you. I explain."

The new groom was compelled to put forth all his energies to keep his face straight. If he laughed, he was lost. If only his old mates could see him now. The fop of Troop A playing at butler! Certainly he would have to write Chuck about it—(which he most certainly never did). Still, the ordeal in the dining-room was a severe one. Nothing he attempted was done satisfactorily. Pierre, having in mind Celeste's frivolity and this man's good looks, made the task doubly hard. He hissed "Idiot!" and "Imbecile!" and "Jackass!" as many times as there are knives and forks and spoons at a course dinner. It was when they came to the wines that Pierre became mollified. He was forced to acknowledge that the new groom needed no instructions as to the varying temperatures of calets and burgundies. Warburton longed to get out into the open and yell. It was very funny. He managed, however, on third rehearsal, to acquit himself with some credit. They returned to the kitchen again where they found Celeste nibbling crackers and cheese. She smiled.

"Ha!" The vowel was given a prolonged roll. "So, Mademoiselle, you haf to come and look on eh?"

"Is there any objection, Monsieur?" retorted Celeste in her native tongue, making handsome eyes at Warburton, who was greatly amused.

"Ha! if he was hideous, would you be putting on those ribbons I gave you to wear on Sundays?" snarled Pierre.

"I shall throw them away, Monsieur Flageot, if you dare to talk to me like that. He is handsome and you are jealous, and I am glad. You behaved horribly to that coarse Nanan last Sunday. Because she scrubs the steps of the French embassy you consider her above me, me!"

"You are crazy!" roared Pierre. "You introduced me to her so that you might make eyes at that abominable valet of the secretary!"

Celeste flounced (whatever means of locomotion that is) abruptly from the kitchen. Pierre turned savagely to his protege.

Go! And eef you look at her, idiot, I haf revenge myself. Oh, I am calm! Bah! Go to zee stables, cattle!" And he rattled his pans at a great rate.

Warburton was glad enough to escape.

"I have brought discord into the land, it would seem."

But his trials were not over. The worst ordeal was yet to come. At five, orders were given to harness the coach-horses to the coupe and have them at the steps promptly at eight-thirty. Miss Annesley had signified her intention of making a call in the city. Warburton had not the slightest suspicion of the destination. He didn't care where it was. It would be dark and he would pass unrecognized. He gave the order no more thought. Promptly at eight-thirty he drove up to the steps. A moment later she issued forth, accompanied by a gentleman in evening dress. It was too dark for Warburton to distinguish his features.

"I am very sorry, Count, to leave you; but you understand perfectly. It is an old school friend of mine whom I haven't seen in a long time; one of the best girl friends I have ever known. I promised to dine with her to-night, but I broke that promise and agreed to spend the evening."

'Do not disturb yourself on my account." replied the man in broken English, which was rather pleasant to the ear. "Your excellent father and I can pass the evening very well."

Karloff! Warburton's chin sank into his collar and his hands trembled. This man Karloff had very penetrating eyes, even in the dark.

"But I shall miss the music which I promised myself. Ah, if you only knew how adorable you are when you play the violin! I become lost, I forget the world and its sordidness. I forget everything but that mysterious voice which you alone know how to arouse from that little box of wood. You are a great artist, and if you were before the public, the world would go mad over you—as I have."

So she played the violin, thought the unhappy man on the box of the coupe.

"Count, you know that is taboo; you must not talk to me like that,"—with a nervous glance at the groom.

"The groom embarrasses you?" The count laughed. "Well, it is only a groom, an animal which does not understand these things."

"Besides. I do not play nearly so well as you would have me believe,"—steering him to safer channels.

"Whatever you undertake, Mademoiselle, becomes at once an art,"—gallantly. "Good-night!"—and the count saluted her hand as he helped her into the coupe.

How M'sieu Zhames would have liked to jump down and pommel Monsieur le Comte! Several wicked thoughts surged through our jehu's brain, but to execute any one of them in her presence was impossible.

"Good-night, Count. I shall see you at dinner on Monday."

She would, eh? And her new butler would be on duty that same evening? Without a doubt. M'sieu Zhames vowed under his breath that if he got a good chance he would make the count look ridiculous. Not even a king can retain his dignity while a stream of hot soup is trickling down his spinal column. Warburton smiled. He was mentally acting like a schoolboy disappointed in love. His own keen sense of the humorous came to his rescue.

"James, to the city, No. — Scott Circle, and hurry." The door closed.

Scott Circle? Warburton's spine wrinkled. Heaven help him, he was driving Miss Annesley to his own brother's house! What the devil was getting into fate anyhow? He swore softly all the way to the Connecticut avenue extension. He made three mistakes before he struck Sixteenth street. Reaching Scott Circle finally, he had no difficulty in recognizing the house. He drew up at the stepping-stone, alighted and opened the door.

"I shall be gone perhaps an hour and a half, James. You may drive around, but return sharply at ten-thirty." Betty ran up the steps and rang the bell.

Our jehu did not wait to see the door open, but drove away, licketty-clip. I do not know what a mile licketty-clip is generally made in, but I am rather certain that the civil law demands $25.00 for the same. The gods were with him this time and no one called him to halt. When he had gone far away from Scott Circle as he dared go, his eye was attracted by a genial cigar sign. He hailed a boy to hold the horses and went inside. He bought a dozen cigars and lit one. He didn't even take the trouble to see if he could get the cigars for nothing, there being a penny-in-the-slot machine in one corner of the shop. I am sure that if he had noticed it, it would have enticed him, for the spirit of chance was well-grounded in him, as it is in all army men. But he hurried out, threw the boy a dime, and drove away. For an hour and 20 minutes he drove and smoked and pondered. So she played the violin! played it wonderfully as the count had declared. He was passionately fond of music. In London, in Paris, in Berlin, in Vienna, he had been an untiring, unfailing patron of the opera. Some night he resolved to listen at the window, providing the window was open. Yes, a hundred times Chuck was right. Any other girl, and this jest might have passed capitally: but he wanted the respect of this particular woman, and he had carelessly closed the doors to her regard. She might tolerate him, that would be all. She would look upon him as a hobbledehoy.

He approached the curb again in front of the house, and gazed wistfully at the lighted windows. Here was another great opportunity gone. How he longed to dash into the house, confess, and have done with it!

[To Be Continued.]

Set the Hare Free.

The late Lady Florence Dixie not only wrote and spoke against cruelty to animals, but practiced what she preached. Some years ago she was in the inclosure at New Market, together with another lady, conversing with the king, then, of course, Prince of Wales, when suddenly an excited shout arose from the crowd. Some men had started a hare, and immediately a gang of roughs rushed away in chase of the terrified animal. Sticks and stones were flung at the poor creature, until eventually it was captured by a great navvy. The interest of the fashionable crowd quickly died out, but not the anger of Lady Florence. Leaving the prince's side, she went over to the man who was leading her horse about, and jumping on the animal's back rode over to the mob. Forcing her horse up to the navvy she suddenly made a snatch, rescued the trembling beast, and then galloped away to a distant plantation, where she dismounted and set the hare free.

With or Without.

A fastidious man undertook to transmit instructions through the waiter to the cook. He wanted an oyster stew. These were his instructions:

"Now, waiter, kindly tell the cook I don't want the oysters and the milk merely mixed and heated. I want the milk carefully boiled first. The oysters should then be added without the liquor. The liquor should not be put in until the seasoning is added. Be very particular to get good, rich milk, and nothing but the best gilt edge butter. As for the oysters, I want Cape Cod salts. No ordinary stock oysters for me. Do you understand?"

"I think so, sir," replied the waiter, "but do you want the oysters with or without?"

"With or without what?" asked the customer.

"Pearls, sir."

Do Not Limit Your Ability.

Poverty and failure are self-invited. The disaster people dread often comes to them. Worry and anxiety enfeeble their force of mind and so blunt their creative and productive faculties that they are unable to exercise them properly. Fear of failure, or lack of faith in one's ability, is one of the most potent causes of failure. Many people of splendid powers have attained only mediocre success, and some are total failures, because they set bounds to their achievement, beyond which they did not allow themselves to think that they could pass. They put limitations to their ability; they cast stumbling blocks in their way, by aiming only at mediocrity or predicting failure for themselves, talking their wares down instead of up, disparaging their business, and belittling their powers.—Success Magazine.

Question of Speed.

The automobile crank was talking about his huge racing car.

"One day in August," he said, "I took a run out into the country, and somehow got lost. On toward dusk I found myself at the meeting point of four cross roads and unable to tell which road would lead me back home.

"So I pulled up and waited, and soon a boy driving a cow appeared.

"'My lad,' I said, 'I want to get to S———.'

"The little fellow stared at my 110-horse-power car, and then he said calmly:

"'Well, just follow this cow an' ye'll get thar.'"

UNDERTAKING.

THAW IS HELD SANE

ALIENISTS DECLARE SLAYER'S MIND NOT AFFECTED.

REFUSES TO BE EXAMINED

Speculation Regarding Gotham Tragedy—Letter from White Said to Have Been Cause of Murder.

New York.—That Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, is perfectly sane was the report made by the alienists retained by the district attorney's office to examine into the prisoner's mental condition. This report was made after the physicians had spent an hour with Thaw, who, in defiance of the advice of his counsel, former Judge Olcott, refused to anyswer any questions and declared that nothing short of actual force would compel him to submit to a physical examination.

It was announced at the office of the district attorney that Dr. Garvin, who is preparing the case against Thaw, had discovered a witness who alleged that he overheard White make derogatory remarks concerning Mrs. Thaw while in the Cafe Martin a few hours before he was shot.

With the police, coroner's and district attorney's office working practically day and night to learn all the circumstances which led up to the murder of Stanford White by Harry Thaw Monday night, and all sources silent as to their discoveries, there was much room for speculation Wednesday on all phases of the case. The motive for the murder, the police believe, was outlined by Thaw's brief statement that his home had been ruined, and with this as a basis of investigation detectives were sent in various directions looking up Thaw's habits in New York and investigating the many stories told concerning Stanford White's conduct.

Perhaps the most interesting development was the announcement that Mrs. Thaw told her husband's lawyers that she had received many letters from Mr. White since her marriage. One of these she threw on her dressing table a few days ago and her husband found it and vowed vengeance on the writer. While the finding of this letter may have been the direct cause of the tragedy, Thaw's jealousy of and hatred for White were of long standing, and the young man made frequent threats to kill his supposed rival.

Mr. White was astonished some months ago to find that detectives were following him wherever he went. At first he had some doubt whether the men were really dogging his footsteps or whether it was a mere accident that the same faces appeared when he left his office, his home or his club at morning, noon and night. When he had become convinced beyond a possible doubt that reports of his movements were being prepared for somebody, he took steps to have some detective work done on his own account, and to have his shadowers followed.

He employed a man to go after him wherever he went, so far as possible, and then he amused himself by giving the slip to the first detective. The person he employed discovered that the other detective reported to Thaw. In this way Mr. White was able to obtain ample warning that the wealthy young man from Pittsburg suspected him and was preparing some unpleasant surprises. Mr. White took occasion to mention this fact to some of his associates and commented that one reason, he assumed, that Thaw was angry with him because he was familiar with a document drawn by the present Mrs. Thaw before her marriage. The nature of this is not known.

There are many stories, too, of haw's first meeting with White, hich is said to have taken place n Paris last spring, after Thaw and Miss Nesbit were married and in the course f which Thaw threatened White.

Agnes Palmer, a chorus girl, is oted in an interview as saying that . White had told her that he knew law was "gunning for him."

Funeral services over the body of anford White, the murdered man, ill be held Thursday. The body will e taken to St. James, L. I., in a pecial train. The services will be held in the Episcopal church there, and the body will be buried at St. James.

Michigan Mine Strike Settled.

Bay City, Mich.—The differences which have existed between the coal operators and miners of the Michigan district since March last were formally settled Tuesday afternoon at a joint conference. The scale of 1903, carrying an advance of 5.55 per cent., was adopted. The initiation fee, which the union had placed at $50, was reduced to $25, $10 to be paid down and the balance a the rate of $2.50 each pay day. The mines will be reopened at once. The new agreement holds until April 1, 1908.

Philippine Rebels Quit.

Manila.—The Pulajane leaders, Quientin and Adva, have surrendered to Gov. Osmena and the island constabulary. These were the last of the men arrayed against the Americans on the island of Cebu.

NEW CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH RECENTLY DEDICATED IN BOSTON

Beautiful Edifice Has Cost Nearly Two Million Dollars—Higher Than Bunker Hill Monument.

Boston.—Rising above theroof tops the church spires of the Black Bay district, and reaching a height loftier than Bunker Hill monument, looms the magnificent new cathedral of Christian Science, at once the largest, the costliest church edifice in this part of the country and one of the most remarkable church structures in the world. It was dedicated on Sunday, June 10.

It is two years since the corner stone was laid, and day and night since then more than 300 men have been employed to hurry the structure to completion.

It is 12 years since the first church of this new denomination was built, and 30 years ago in July the first Christian Science was formally organized.

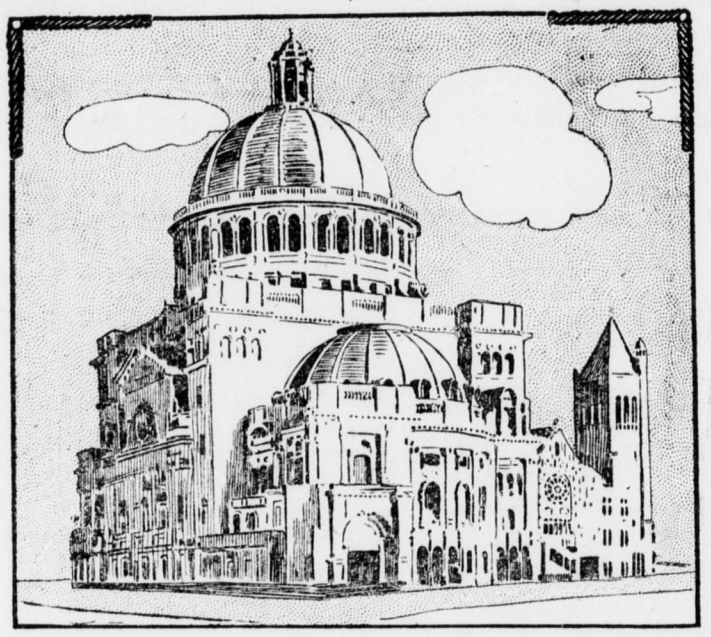
The cathedral adjoins the "mother" church, as the one built 12 years ago is called. This is at the junction of Norway and Furmouth streets and extends back to St. Paul's. The builders planned for an auditorium which would be the largest in New England in its seating capacity. Space was provided for more than a mile of magnificent mahogany pews, which give a seating capacity of 5,000, which is more than five times the capacity of the old South church, more than three times that of Trinity and twice that of Tremont temple or the cathedral of the Holy Cross.

The auditorium contains seven galleries, two on each side and three at the back, all so arranged that not a pillar or post interrupts the view of the platform from any seat. The roof of the auditorium rises to a height of 108 feet from the floor, the entire weight being borne by four arches resting on four massive stone piers, which form the four corners of the auditorium.

The dome is more than twice the size of the dome on the state house. Notwithstanding the greater elevation of the site of the capitol building the church dome rises to a greater height. The top of the state house dome is 110 feet from the street and the street is 100 feet from the level. The Christian Science dome is 224 feet above the street, and the street there is only 15 feet above the sea level. The state house dome has a diameter of 53 feet and a height of 35, while the church dome is 82 feet in diameter and 51 feet high.

The area occupied by the church is 42,000 square feet. The first course material in granite from Mrs. Eddy's home, Concord, N. H. Above that the material is Bedford stone. The semi-domes, the domes and the cupola are of gray semi-glazed terra cotta. The auditorium is up one flight. The first floor contains two stone and marble columns. In the center is the Sunday school room, with a seating capacity of 700. As far as possible the building is fireproof. The interior finish is of marble and Bedford stone. The seven staircases are of bronze, marble, Bedford stone and steel.

The church cost nearly $2,000,000. It was erected by popular subscription. A remarkable feature is that the building is entirely free from debt. Twice in the history of the Christian Science church in Boston it has been found necessary to invite the members to discontinue contributions to its building fund—once in 1895, when the original church was dedicated, and again now when it was found that more than enough money had been received to pay for the extension of the church.



BLIND GIRL IS A LAWYER.

Leads Graduating Class in California School—Will Take Up Music as Livelihood.

New York.—Miss Christine La Barraque, now 28 years old, who has been blind since she was a baby, is a lawyer. She was graduated at the head of a law class in a California law school, and has been admitted to the bar in that state.

Miss La Barraque is a remarkable young woman. She is a graduate of the University of California, a finished linguist, an accomplished equestrienne and a musician. She is now in this city completing her musical education.

Getting her degree, she announced that her ambition was to become a lawyer. The professors told her it was absurd, but she insisted and became a night school teacher to earn enough money to carry her through the law school. There were 75 men in the class, and at the end only 39 remained.

MISS CHRISTINE LA BARRAQUE. (Blind Girl Who Has Been Admitted to the Bar in California.)

In the final examination Miss La Barraque led them all.

"Of course, I realize that a blind woman could hardly practice law successfully, so I decided to take up music as my livelihood," she declared, "and I know I shall succeed."

MEMORIAL TO SOLDIERS.

Monument Being Erected by State of Wisconsin at Andersonville, Ga.—To Cost $10,000.

Milwaukee.—The design of the soldiers' monument, now in progress of erection in Prison park, Andersonville, Ga., has been made public. Charles A. Fink, a Milwaukee architect, was the successful designer of the monument, which will be erected at a cost of $10,000, which has been appropriated by the state legislature of Wisconsin.

MONUMENT BEING ERECTED AT ANDERSONVILLE, GA.

Georgia granite, which has been pronounced equal to Wisconsin granite by the state geologist, will be used in the construction of the monument. The inscription tablet, however, will be of Wisconsin granite. The monument is to be completed by fall.

Emperor's Latest Fad.

The kaiser's latest fad is photography in three colors. He has a studio erected at his palace of Monbijon, and either works there himself or poses to others. In the latter case he changes his costume up to 60 times—green coat, red coat, of the Order of the Garter, field marshal's uniform, with the baton in his hand, etc. These imperial photos are not private, and they will soon be exposed in the shop windows of Berlin.

Pineapple Seeds Scarce.

Only about one pineapple in every 20,000 has seeds in it, and it is from these seeds that new varieties are produced.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

TEETH THAT WERE USELESS

Puzzle to the Man Who Had Suddenly Sustained the Loss of Them.

Harry Leon Wilson, author of "The Spenders," was domiciled for a summer in Connecticut with a colony of artists and writers, all of whom had to go into the city every day, relates the Saturday Evening Post.

Wilson was doing nothing but loafing. He loafed artistically, and from time to time met and had fun with some of the natives of the place. One day he found two men in the road who seemed congenial, and he struck up an acquaintance with them. He proposed a drive and they got a surrey and two horses.

"Can you drive?" asked Wilson.

"Sure," one of his sudden friends replied, "I am a fine driver."

They got aboard and started down the road. Before they had gone half a mile the team was frightened by a passing automobile and ran away. The driver valiantly steered the horses into a telegraph pole and Wilson and his two friends were thrown helter-skelter into the road.

Wilson slowly gathered himself together. One of his friends was sitting in the ditch rubbing his bruises and the other stood in the middle of the road gazing in tearful misery at two front teeth which he held in the palm of his hand.

"Pretty lucky escape, wasn't it?" asked Wilson, for want of something better to say.

"Yes," replied the man with the teeth, weeping afresh, "but please, oh, please, tell me, what shall I do with these?"

There is always room at the top, of course, but sometimes it's a whole lot more sociable at the bottom.—Puck.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE

Agrees with Him About Food.

A trained nurse says: "In the practice of my profession I have found so many points in favor of Grape-Nuts food that I unhesitatingly recommend it to all my patients.

"It is delicate and pleasing to the palate (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to all ages, being softened with milk or cream for babies or the aged when deficiency of teeth renders mastication impossible. For fever patients or those on liquid diet I find Grape-Nuts and albumen water very nourishing and refreshing. This recipe is my own idea and is made as follows: Soak a teaspoonful of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water for an hour, strain and serve with the beaten white of an egg and a spoonful of fruit juice or flavoring. This affords a great deal of nourishment that even the weakest stomach can assimilate without any distress.

"My husband is a physician and he uses Grape-Nuts himself and orders it many times for his patients.

"Personally I regard a dish of Grape-Nuts with fresh or stewed fruit as the ideal breakfast for anyone—well or sick." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

In any case of stomach trouble, nervous prostration or brain fag, a 10 days' trial of Grape-Nuts will work wonders toward nourishing and rebuilding, and in this way ending the trouble. "There's a reason" and trial proves.

INVESTMENT IN MOTH BALLS

Manner of Using the Preventive That Proved to Be a Signal Failure.

A State street druggist, telling of the quaint characters whom he encounters in his business, recently said: "Late one afternoon one of the 'ould sod' ambled up to the counter. 'Hov yez onything good to kill moths?' he asked, relates the Chicago Record-Herald.

"'Yes,' said I, 'we have moth balls, the best reemdy known.'

"'Give me tin cints' worth, thin,' says he.

"I made up the package, handed it to him, and he ambled out again. I had forgotten all about my customer until about four o'clock the next afternoon, when I was forcibly reminded of the transaction of the day before. After I had waited on my customers in their turn I walked over to another counter and was there confronted with my moth-ball investor. Without giving me time to make an inquiry, he said:

"'Are yez the young mon that sold me thim things yistiddy?' showing me the remains of about half a dozen of the white balls.

"I answered in the affirmative, and also inquired what the trouble was.

"'Av all the con games I've run up against in me toime, this bates thim all,' he said. 'To think of onyone running a decent down-town store selling the loikes of thim things to kill moths with, or onything else, for the matter of that. They might be all right for playing marbles, but for killin' moths, niver. I may not be as young as yez are, young mon, but I'm just as stiddy, and I want to tell you wan thing. If yez can show me the man or woman that can throw wan of thim balls quick enough to kill a moth I'll not only ate iviry wan of thim yez have in stock, but I'll say nothing about the picture the ould woman and meself broke in the foine little game yez would have us play.'"

A man finds it easier to boast of the glories of the past if there are not a few old-timers around who remember it even better than he does himself.

A man who speaks from experience says that it costs almost as much to keep a wife in clothes as it does to keep an automobile in repair.
